

CONTRIBUTORS

Benjamin Zyla is an assistant professor in the School of International Development and Global Studies at the University of Ottawa and an affiliate of several research cooperatives. Zyla is the author and editor of several books, including Sharing the Burden?: NATO and its Second-Tier Powers with the University of Toronto Press and co-authored such articles as “Looking for a ‘Berlin-Plus in Reverse?’ NATO in Search of a New Strategic Concept” and “Who is keeping the peace and who is free-riding? NATO middle powers and Burden Sharing, 1995–2001.” He received a PhD from the Royal Military College of Canada.

Catherine Hecht is a Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada postdoctoral fellow with the Vienna School of International Studies. Hecht’s research interests include international organizations, multilateral diplomacy, development and contestation of international norms, and status in international relations. Her work has appeared in Review of International Studies and Canadian Foreign Policy.

Hae Kim is a professor of international relations in the Department of Political Science at Troy University. Kim’s publications include “Patterns of Economic Development in Asia: Economic Growth and Quality of Life,” “The Complexities of Internal Conflict in the Third World: Beyond Ethnic and Religious Conflict,” “The Determinants of Internal Conflict in the Third World,” and “Trade-Offs between Military Spending, Quality of Life and Economic Growth.” He received a PhD in political science from Florida State University.

David Eichert is in the Center for European and Mediterranean Studies at New York University, having previously worked as a researcher at the Berkman Center for Internet & Society at Harvard University and with various NGOs associated with the UN Offices in Geneva. Eichert plans to begin his doctoral studies in fall 2017.

Sten Rynning is a professor in the Department of Political Science and Public Management and the Center for War Studies at the University of Southern Denmark. Rynning’s recent work includes “The False Promise of Continental Concert.”

Nicole J. Jackson is an associate professor in the School for International Studies at Simon Fraser University. Jackson’s recent work includes “International Organizations, Security Dichotomies, and the Trafficking of Persons and Narcotics in Post-Soviet Central Asia: A Critique of the Securitization Framework.”